

BIOGRAPHICAL SUMMARY

John E. Wolf, Jr., M.D., M.A.

Dr. John E. Wolf, Jr., is a graduate of Rice University (B.A., History, 1961) (Distinguished Alumnus, 2003) and the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston (MA, Anatomy, 1964; M.D. with High Honors, 1965). He completed a medical internship on the Cornell University Service at Bellevue Hospital in New York City (1965-1966), before serving two years as a Peace Corps Physician in the Micronesian Islands. Dr. Wolf was subsequently a dermatology resident at the University of California in San Francisco, a fellow in tropical dermatology at the Instituto Dermatologico in Guadalajara, and Senior Registrar at St. John's Hospital for Diseases of the Skin in London, England.

Dr. Wolf has been on the full-time faculty of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, Texas since 1974, rising to the rank of Professor and Chairman of the Department of Dermatology in 1984. He is Chief of the Dermatology Services at The Methodist Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, and Ben Taub General Hospital.

Dr. Wolf is a Diplomat of the American Board of Dermatology (1973) and has been active in many medical societies, including: the American Academy of Dermatology (Archivist; History Committee; National Media Spokesperson; Editorial Board, Dialogues in Dermatology); the Texas Dermatological Society (Chairman, Public Affairs Committee; Program Chair, Annual Meeting, 1988, 1997, 2006); the Houston Dermatological Society (President, 1987); the Society for Investigative Dermatology (History Committee); the International Society for Tropical Dermatology; the Dermatological Therapy Association (President; Board of Directors); the Pacific Dermatological Association (Historian); the South Central Dermatological Association (Program Chairman); the Association of Professors of Dermatology (Historian; Editor, APD Data); the American Association for the History of Medicine; and the American Dermatological Association (Historian).

Dr. Wolf has authored over 170 publications and delivered more than 1000 scientific and clinical presentations. He has been a Visiting Professor and/or Invited Guest Speaker at the University of California in San Francisco, UC Davis, The University of Louisville, Emory University, Yale University, NYU, Washington University in St. Louis, Southwestern Medical School, Stanford University, the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, Loma Linda University, The University of Cincinnati, Vanderbilt, the University of Rochester, Mt. Sinai, SUNY Downstate, Henry Ford Hospital, the University of Hawaii, St. John's Hospital in London, the Eppley Cancer Institute, the Patterson Symposium in Manchester, England, the Zagazig Conference in Cairo, Egypt and the Austin, Chicago, Dallas, Fort Worth, Tucson, Phoenix, San Antonio, Baton Rouge, Shreveport, Little Rock, Fresno, Kansas City, Honolulu, St. Louis, San Diego, San Francisco, Miami, Memphis, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Missouri, Florida, Georgia, Colorado, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, and Texas Dermatological Societies. He has also spoken to dermatological societies in China, Malaysia, Singapore, Mexico, Egypt, Hong Kong, Korea, Thailand, Viet Nam, Brazil, Puerto Rico, Portugal, Venezuela, Australia, England, Scotland, Germany, Switzerland, France, and the Philippines and has lectured in 25 foreign countries.

As a National Media Spokesperson for the American Academy of Dermatology, Dr. Wolf conducted media tours in San Francisco, Oakland, Nashville, and Phoenix. He has participated in numerous radio, television, and printed media interviews, including the Wall Street Journal & The Today Show on NBC.

Dr. Wolf is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha medical honor society and has a strong commitment to expanding the role of the humanities in medicine. A history major at Rice University, he is historian of several scientific societies and has made numerous presentations in the field of medical history, including the T. Cook Smith Lecture to the Innominate Society of Louisville, Kentucky and lectures to the Tulane University Medical History Society, the Chauncey Leake Society in Galveston, Texas, and the American Association for Medical History. He is the author of several publications on the history of dermatology. He has been a member of the Society of Literature in Science and the American Medical Poetry Association and is a judge for the Michael E. DeBakey Medical Student Poetry Award. He has lectured frequently on both literature and the visual arts in medicine.

Dr. Wolf has served on several Editorial Boards, including Dialogues in Dermatology, Clinics in Dermatology, and The Psoriasis Forum. He is on the Board of Directors of The Houston Health Museum, the Board of The Friends of Fondren Library (Rice University) (Emeritus), the Advisory Board of The Shepherd Music Society (also at Rice University), and is President of The Friends of the Texas Medical Center Library. Dr. Wolf is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha medical honor society and has had numerous listings in Best Doctors in Houston, Texas, and America.