OPTIONAL PERSONAL STATEMENT (recommended for board candidates)

For many years, I have simply felt too young to possibly even be considered for a position on the Board. This, despite the fact that fellow Rice Alum Germaine Gibbs always says I should ignore that fact and apply anyway. The suggestion that I should apply to become a board member usually comes after we attend an Alumni Event that inevitably starts off with an introduction that involves someone saying "Well, I remember when this was still the Rice Institute...". For some of us, especially the younger alums, that sort of statement can be hard to hear. First and foremost, Rice hasn't been an institute since 1960. Secondly, for many of us, it conjures up a time when someone like me (Woman, Hispanic) would not have been permitted to attend Rice. I respect that Rice's history is part of what helped it become the spectacular university it is now. However, it is perhaps time for Rice to be represented by a younger crowd that does not remember our school as being anything other than multiculturally diverse and inclusive of all. I have loved Rice from the moment I stepped foot on the campus as a senior in High School. In fact, I loved it so much, I married a fellow alum and returned for a Master's degree. I have been very involved as an alum since graduation and I feel that becoming a board member would be a natural next step in my involvement with Rice. GO OWLS!!
